THE JUBILEE OF THE HEBREW UNION COLLEGE

BY FERDINAND M. ISSERMAN

Fifty years ago Isaac Mayer Wise, rabbi of the Plum Street Temple of Cincinnati, and pioneer reformer in American Judaism convened the first session of the Hebrew Union College. Classes were held in the basement of his synagogue, and a make-shift faculty imparted instruction to a small group of pupils. Under such adverse circumstances did America's oldest rabbinical college commence its task of training modern Jewish leaders. Like every pioneer venture, the Hebrew Union College met with failure and discouragement. Hostile critics hurled their invectives against the young institution. Confirmed reactionaries, wedded to the status quo, resented the attempt to develop modern rabbis for the growing American communities. Jeremiahs sang their dirges and Jonahs predicted downfall. But the college survived, graduated from its basement home to a building of its own, attracted students from the whole country, and sent forth trained rabbis who initiated a new epoch in American Jewish life.

To-day the Hebrew Union College is the best organized rabbinical seminary in the world. Two hundred and seventy-one of its graduates are filling the leading pulpits in America. One has initiated the reform movement in England. Two are located in Canada. One is president of the Hebrew Union College, and another is dean of the Hebrew University. More than a hundred students are enrolled at the College, living in a dormitory built by the sisterhoods of all America. More than half of the present faculty were formerly students at the College. In its fifty years of existence the College has had on its faculty some of the great Jewish scholars of the age, David Neumark, Gotthard Deutsch, Kaufman Kohler, Jacob Z. Lauterbach, Moses Mielziener, and Moses Buttenwieser. These men have left their impress on the American rabbinate.

The Hebrew Union College may look back with satisfaction on a half century of constructive achievement. Its record is a just source of pride to American Jewry, and its achievements are a spur to the future.

May the next fifty years reveal continued constructive growth, that even as we to-day rejoice over the progress of the past, the generation which will gather to celebrate the centennial of the College, will glory over the progress we have helped create.

THE CONVENTION OF RABBIS

The Central Conference of American rabbis held its annual convention at Cincinnati last week. The Conference sessions usually conducted in the early summer were postponed till the fall that they might coincide with the jubilee celebration of the Hebrew Union College. The Central Conference of Rabbis is the organization of Liberal rabbis, most of whom are graduates of the Hebrew Union College. Its dicta, while not binding on Liberal Jews, are generally considered authoritative. Many vital matters were discussed and some of them we shall briefly jot down.

1. RELIGION IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The Conference again unequivocally declared its belief in the fundamental American principle that church and state are separate and must remain so. The Conference is, therefore, unalterably opposed to any attempt to teach religion in the public schools. The Conference recognized that the demands of the public school are so great that insufficient time is available for religious instruction. It, therefore, would approve measures curtailing the time of the public school, in order to allow the religious institutions to use this additional leisure of the children for religious instruction. There is, however, to be no compulsion about this. When the children are released from the public school, they are free to do what they or their parents please. Nor ought any credit be allowed for religious work in the public school. The attitude of the Conference is the one we share. Religion should not be taught in the public schools. Religion is an intimate, personal experience, in which every individual should follow the dictates of his conscience, and over which the state should have no control. The state, however, should not absorb all the leisure of children, but should so arrange its public school schedule, that the church, synagogue and cathedral will not be crowded off the child's programme.

2. JUDAISM AND SCIENCE

The rabbis unanimously agreed that there was no conflict between religion and science, and, furthermore, that science should be allowed to pursue its quest for truth unhampered and unfettered. True religion need not fear the findings of science. God in the ultimate analysis made the laws, which scientific investigation discovers. Modern science unquestionably is in conflict with the science of the Bible. The Biblical writers uttered their religious beliefs in the language of their own day. The science of that day has long been discarded. Religion should recognize that. Judaism has always accepted the truths of science, and has restated its beliefs to accord with them. Evolution today is an accepted hypothesis in scientific fields, and Judaism accepts it as such without in any way weakening its spiritual outlook.

3. JUDAISM AND PROSELYTES

A committee of the Conference is preparing a handbook for proselytes. Press despatches carried erroneous reports that the rabbis had decided to launch an extensive campaign for converts to Judaism. Nothing was farther from the minds of the rabbis. The rabbis were compelled to draw up such a book primarily for those proselytes who came via the marriage altar. Incidentally, the rabbis declared that Judaism will accept into its religious fellowship all those who so desire. Judaism has always accepted converts, but it has not for many centuries waged an aggressive campaign to secure them. The desire for many converts is a form of imperialism. Judaism has its task cut out to convert Jews to believing and living its spiritual ideals, without attempting to win converts, who would at best give but lip homage to it.

4. MISCELLANEOUS

Many other vital questions were discussed, such as world peace, the youth and the synagogue, the college man and religion, the institutional synagogue and marriage laws. All these brought forth stimulating discussion, and revealed a group of earnest and eager men, who are sincerely and ably coping with the great tasks of Judaism and of humanity.

VILMA BANKY MAKES FILM DEBUT IN "THE DARK ANGEL" AT THE PALACE THEATRE

"The Dark Angel," the First National attraction coming to the Palace Theatre next Sunday, marks the screen debut of beautiful Vilma Banky, who has created such a sensation in Hollywood.

Miss Banky was but recently "discovered" in Budapest by Samuel Goldwyn, the famous producer, while the latter was enjoying a leisure tour through Europe.

Arrived in Budapest, he heard frequent allusions to a young and beautiful screen star who had just taken that city by storm. She was working in a local studio and had appeared in two or three Hungarian films with great success.

The producer, accustomed to screen aspirants' attempts to gain his attention, thought nothing of the girl until he

No irritation for baby's skin

Do this and keep his clothing soft, pure and comfortable

Nothing is so sensitive as baby's skin! Even the slightest roughness in his diapers, shirts and bands will inflame and irritate it.

Much trouble is directly due to washing diapers with harsh soap—soap containing free alkali. The alkali clings to the little garments in the form of a fine, white powder—almost impossible to rinse out. This causes "diaper rash."

To save baby's skin, use Lux for washing all his clothes. It is the mildest, purest, gentlest cleanser in the world. Lux contains no free alkali, and the pure suds rinse out completely. Lux keeps baby's garments soft, clean, comfortable and safe!

Lever Brothers Limited, Toronto.

How to wash diapers
Remove solid matter at once and soak diapers in cold water. Whisk two tablespoonfuls of Lux into thick suds in a tub of very hot water. Let diapers soak a few moments, then dip up and down, pressing suds repeatedly through them. Rinse thoroughly in three waters.

Every Woman Deserves One

The SMP Roaster is a fine time saver. You put the roast or fowl in the oven. The roaster does the rest, bastes, roasts to perfection. It roasts with very little shrinkage, thus saving dollars every year. None of the tasty meat juices are lost; all the rich flavor is retained. Besides you can buy cheaper cuts, for it makes cheap cuts taste like choice ones.

The close fitting cover keeps all the cooking odors and the grease inside the roaster—the smell of cooking doesn't fill the house, and the oven is kept sweet and clean. Best of all, it cleans out in a jiffy after the roasting. These are splendid utensils. Price 85c. to $3.50 according to size and finish. Sold in all hardware stores.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancour
That for what it cost me to be free
I might have had an anchor."

Many things are being laid at the door of improper home training these days, so it is not surprising that a letter-writer to one of the American Jewish papers places the blame there for the behaviour of Jewish children while in Sunday school. The writer, who signs himself "a Jewish father" contrasts the conduct of children in Jewish Sunday schools with that of Gentile children in their Sunday schools. To him the Jewish children seem uninterested, they snicker when called upon to answer questions, tease each other openly and are noisy and irreverent. He finds the Gentile children quiet, attentive and serious in their attitude.

This critic says that parents are largely at fault and asks how many of them talk of religion to their children and explain the necessity and the benefits of a religious education. He says the children should be given to understand that they should pay strict attention in Sunday school and not be frivolous and disrespectful. This man may be right in blaming the parents. Perhaps Jewish parents as a rule don't take Sunday school any too seriously. If Sunday school doesn't make much of an impression on Irvington (grandson of Yitzchock, who knew so much about the Talmud), at least it can't hurt him, they think. Maybe the social aspect of Sunday school intrigues as much as anything else. If he goes there he will grow up identified with a certain "set" and if the "set" changes during the rise of his parents, so much the better. Granted that many parents are nonchalant about what the child is going to derive in actual knowledge and spiritual help, there may be still other reasons for wrong behaviour wherever it is found in Jewish Sunday schools.

What are the instruction rooms like? On this subject, Rabbi Alexander W. Lyons, of Brooklyn, N.Y., writing in his "Supplement," once said:

"There are numerous Sunday schools both Jewish and Christian, where the equipment would not be fit to furnish accommodation to pet animals and yet boys and girls by the thousands are given religious instruction there. It indicates how little many people know about the processes of education, how little they know about religion and how little they actually care about the religious nurture of the young. It is a common thing for a congregation to build a beautiful spacious auditorium for hundreds of people who rarely come and yet pack hundreds of children week by week into dark, ill-ventilated rooms where they are compelled to crowd and disturb one another like cattle."

Maybe the letter-writer was speaking of Jewish children in such surroundings. If this is a common condition, it is easy to explain restlessness among the pupils.

Again, what are the teachers like? In some of the larger American congregations, only public school teachers or people with some knowledge of modern pedagogy hold positions as Jewish Sunday school teachers and they are usually paid for their services. Perhaps the greater number of Gentile trained teachers makes more good teachers available to the Gentile Sunday schools than to the Jewish Sunday schools. If Sunday school work is important for the child, then there should be as high a standard as possible for teachers. The less hit-and-miss teaching the greater interest on the part of the child and the less he will have to be forced, bribed or cajoled into going to Sunday school.

Jewish Sunday schools are opening now all over the country. They should have no problems of discipline. Wherever they do the schools should take stock and find out where the trouble is that helps to neutralize their work.

Rabbi Wise Accepts Leadership of United Palestine Funds

In a letter to Louis Lipsky, Chairman of the Zionist Organization of America, Dr. Stephen S. Wise accepts the leadership of a National Committee which will conduct an appeal for $5,000,000 on behalf of the funds engaged in colonization and other development work in Palestine. The funds which will, for the first time, combine their appeal, include the Keren Hayesod, which is the principal immigration and colonization agency of the Zionist movement; the Jewish National Fund, which confines itself to purchasing and improving land for colonization purposes; Hadassah Medical Organization, which maintains a system of hospitals and other activities in Palestine; the Hebrew University Fund; and the funds for developing the Rutenberg Jordan River power and light concession.

It is understood that a national conference on Palestine will take place early next month and that prominent European leaders of the movement, including Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organization, will come to this country to participate in the appeal.

Rabbi Max Leiberman, who has been a resident of Kansas City for more than twenty years, has been elected rabbi of the Hebrew Congregation of Wichita, Kansas. Rabbi Lieberman assumed his new duties as rabbi and principal of the Hebrew and Sunday schools and the Junior Hebrew congregation on October 15.

Israel Rosenfeld, aged seventy-eight, capitalist and philanthropist and many years prominent in Jewish social work, died last Sunday night at his home in Baltimore of a heart attack. Mr. Rosenfeld was for many years a member of a firm of New York clothiers. He retired from active business two years ago.

Max Heckler was appointed principal of the Haifa Technical School in place of Mr. Arthur Biok, who resigned.

TOM MIX AT LOEW'S DOWN-TOWN

Tom Mix, beautiful Alice Calhoun and Tony the wonder steed, are the principles in a vivid Western screen romance which will be presented at Loew's next week in conjunction with a splendid vaudeville programme.

The intriguing title of Tom's new picture is "The Everlasting Whisper," from the pen of Jackson Gregory. It is a typical Tom Mix thriller with a good deal of novelty injected and plenty of effective scenes in which Tom may be seen cavorting in society, doing the new tango and otherwise charming the fair sex.

was attracted by her photo in a Budapest photographer's window.

He inquired her identity, learning that she was the "Vilma Banky" of whom he had heard so much. He immediately endeavoured to get in touch with the young lady.

His attempts, however, were all seemingly frustrated. Apparently her employers did not relish the possibility of losing her.

Samuel Goldwyn, who perhaps has discovered more famous stars than any other man, took one look at the girl, retrieved his baggage, which had already been placed on the train, postponed his departure, and that evening gave her a long time contract to appear in his productions.

In "The Dark Angel" she appears opposite Ronald Colman. Other players of note in the cast are Wyndham Standing, Florence Turner, Helen Jerome Eddy, Frank Elliott and Charles Lane. In addition to the feature, Manager Rotsky has planned several unique added attractions.

Suddenly taken by an attack of heart failure while giving testimony in a civil case being tried before Judge Dugan in Supreme Court Wednesday morning of last week, Aaron Gries, president of Joseph J. Gries Company, Inc., real estate agents of Newark, N.J., died a few moments later. Before taking the stand, Mr. Gries had asked that he be sworn with uplifted hand, instead of in the ordinary manner of placing his hand on a Bible. This request is one which is rarely heard in the court, and it was granted. Mr. Gries and his brother, Joseph, formerly conducted a department store in Rahway. Their main office is in New York and a branch office is maintained in Newark. Both were on the roll of the Newark Real Estate Board.

Rose Pastor Stokes Divorced

Rose Pastor Stokes, one time $12-a-week cigarmaker, whose marriage twenty years ago to Millionaire J. G. Phelps Stokes, was pictued as one of the beautiful romances of history, was divorced by her husband last week.

In Nyack before Supreme Court Justice Tompkins, who granted the decree, there was testimony that Mrs. Stokes has stated that, when divorced, she would be married to H. B. Grossman, Sharon Springs, N.Y., hotel owner, chief co-respondent.

Mrs. Stokes was not in court and when Justice Tompkins asked for her counsel there was no reply. At 10.30 a.m. he handed down his decree. At 12.05 p.m. a man rushed in.

"I am Mrs. Stoke's counsel," he said. "I am here to contest the suit against her for divorce and to present evidence of extenuating circumstances."

"You are too late," replied Justice Tompkins. "This court granted James Graham Phelps Stokes an interocutory decree of divorce more than an hour and a half ago."

The lawyer's protests were unavailing. He declined to make known his name and left, presumably to confer with Mrs. Stokes as to whether an appeal would be taken.

The career of Rose Pastor Stokes as a settlement worker, Communist agitator, radical lecturer and writer has been one to keep her constantly before the public. During and shortly after the war she was repeatedly arrested on such charges as sedition, anarchy and conspiracy to overthrow the government. In 1918 she was sentened to ten years in Federal penitentiary for violating the Espionage Act, but the sentence was reversed and the case later dismissed.

It was about 1904 that Rose Harriet Pastor came to New York from her Cleveland cigar factory job. She became a settlement worker and wrote for the Jewish press. Soon she became known as the "Jewish Poetess" and the "Genius of the Ghetto." One day she went to interview the millionaire settlement worker, J. G. Phelps Stokes. It was love at first sight, and despite an outcry from the Jewish press and church against her marrying a Gentile, she and Stokes became engaged.

Friends referred to the wedding as the "uniting of virtue with wealth," while she herself called it "the union of two souls with one aim to help those who need the uplifting hand of sympathy."

At the Connecticut country home of Stokes, in Noroton Point, there was a great double-ring wedding, with the word "obey" omitted from the ceremony. A honeymoon motoring in Europe and visiting the poor relatives of the bride in the slums of London, then the couple came back to live in a four-room, kitchen and bath apartment on Nomlk Street and to work together in the settlements and in radical circles.

The world pictured it as a beautiful romance and sat back to watch it increase in happiness, but the romance was shattered.

Stokes has an office at No. 100 William Street. His occupation has been chiefly in promoting his own settlement projects, in looking after his fortune, and taking part in various activities of a socialistic nature.

Mrs. Stokes has two New York addresses, one at No. 88 Grove Street and one at No. 348 West Twenty-fourth Street.

His views on the Tariff are briefly as follows:

A Customs Tariff is a tax which is passed on by the importer to the consumer.

The Tariff at the present average level produces a revenue and gives adequate protection.

A higher Tariff would enable the manufacturer to raise his prices to the consumer, increasing the cost of living, but not increasing wages.

A prohibitive Tariff would produce no revenue.

A general increase in Tariff would be disastrous to our export trade, and would increase the cost of production in our basic industries.

The prosperity of our basic industries will insure prosperity to all manufacturers, merchants, financial institutions, and business generally.

When adjustments of the Tariff are necessary, their effect on industry, the consumer and the revenue must be taken into consideration by the Advisory Board.
